

Visceral fat and TruFix

TruVision Works. Diets Don't.

Visceral Fat is the Culprit

Visceral fat (also called intra-abdominal fat) is the unhealthy fat that collects around the waistline. It isn't just a problem in those who are overweight or obese. Even thin people can still have visceral fat. If you are thin and not fit, you probably have visceral fat.

Why should we care about this? This kind of fat ages you and depletes your energy. It overworks and wreaks havoc on the liver. It has been linked to a slew of health problems including heart disease, diabetes, some forms of cancer, and metabolic syndrome (a set of risk factors which increases the chance of developing these diseases).

Additionally, the more visceral fat you have, the lower the amount of energy your body can create at any given time. It is because visceral fat is the most dangerous kind of fat that doctors have grown more concerned about waist size than the number on the scale, which can be very deceiving. While abdominal fat is usually visible, visceral fat can be hidden deep inside an outwardly "thin" person.

The same holds true for fat that can line blood vessels, restrict blood flow, and damage the cardiovascular system.

What does this have to do with TruVision? Well, our products, the TruFix, works from the "inside out." This means it goes after this visceral fat – the worst fat, the bad stuff that contributes to all those diseases FIRST.

This is exciting news! For those of your customers who aren't "getting any results," realize that this fat that we are talking about, the stuff that surrounds your organs, and is UNDER the muscle of your abdomen, is not the most visible stuff.

Once TruFix takes care of the worst fat that is the most dangerous to your health, it will move on to the more visible subcutaneous fat we are all familiar with. The other thing this should tell you, is that just because someone is skinny doesn't mean they don't need TruFix. They can still have visceral fat.

That means you shouldn't rule ANYONE out from needing this product. It can help most everyone! Removing visceral fat decreases the chances for so many health issues, in addition to decreasing our waistlines.

It is our RESPONSIBILITY to get out there and get this product into people's hands!!
